Main title BOBBY BUMPS in BOBBY BUMP'S ORCHESTRA. Cartoon by Earl Hurd.
Prod. 257-S

Conductor of orchestra gives concert - Bobby and Fido are in attendance - they applaud frequently - after the concert Bobby thinks - "I wonder if I can't be a conductor." He forthwith organizes his own band and they play the first concert in the barn - They make quite a racket, however, and the noise reaches over and out through the doors into the concert hall nearby where the real orchestra is playing - the leader gets mad and chases the whole amateur orchestra out of the barn - Bobby is sore and determines to seek revenge. After the concert ~~him~~ he sneaks into the auditorium and proceeds to change the notes on all the manuscripts of music - he alters flats and sharps, and adds notes where none were before. That Night. The concert is on - the house is full - the leader starts the band - then the fun begins - a horrible screeching issued from all the instruments - the players could do naught but play the notes as they read them on the manuscripts - the leader is paralyzed - the house begins to rock and in half a minute the whole hall was empty - the auditors running for their lives - Bobby and Fido remain - they begin to applaud the director - they tell him that as a conductor he is a good motorman. This is too much for him and he falls to the ground. Fade out.
